

This map displays the street network of Visalia, California. A series of red dashed lines outlines a specific area or route that winds through the city, starting from the northwest and moving generally eastward. Several blue icons are placed on the map, likely representing specific locations of interest such as schools, parks, or public facilities. The map includes labels for major roads like Highway 99 and Highway 198, as well as numerous local streets. The city's layout is shown with a grid of streets and various neighborhood names.

— Streets
- - - City Limits
CapeSeal2526